

Save Our Universal, Public Postal Service

Why is the federal government conducting a quick and potentially damaging review of our public postal service? Well, is it their intension to deregulate our postal service? If we look at deregulation of other postal administrations in other Countries, it led to nothing but job cuts, less services, and much higher postal rates. Rural Communities across the Country rely heavily on the postal service, and they should continue to have access to a universal public postal service. The government is not holding public hearings during this review, they do not want to hear from the real owners of our postal service-the public. Today Canada Post has the exclusive privilege to handle letters in Canada. This exclusive privilege guarantees that every Canadian, no matter where they live, enjoy a universal, affordable postal service. Today our postal service is not broken. It does not need to be fixed, just improved. I would hope all Canadians to make submissions to the review panel to tell the Federal Government to keep our Postal Service universal, public, and affordable.
